TO MEASURE TOMORROW

by Glenn Holloway

Woven brilliant birds on draperies
Feather-draping my dull windows—pretending to Seclude my wanting world, but
Hiding nothing. I see and go.
Watching.
Wafting wild wings release you,
Raise you like Nike past
Where leaded minds still stumble.
Beyond
The silence of silver galaxies
Into the singing suns of infinity.
Beyond
The fourth dimension. Who said the fourth
Was all? Who knows? There may be fifty!
You and I know five...
